List & Label 16: New Language Kits

New Designer Language Kits for Development Component List & Label 16 11 Language Kits Prepare Applications for Worldwide Use

Constance/Germany, 01/25/2011 – Software house combit now offers new Designer language kits for international projects with development component List & Label 16. The entire user interface can be switched easily between eleven different foreign languages. The Unicode support enables design and output including export, for example under Greek or Russian operating systems.

“Development component List & Label is the right tool for competitive success in business”, says List & Label project manager Jochen Bartlau. And he explains: “Projects are designed once in a specific language and welcome each user in the user's own language. This facilitates international team play with partners and branch offices across locations all over the globe.”

For customers with the Subscription Edition Enterprise all language kits are inclusive. Customers with the Professional Edition get a 15 % discount on all language kits.
